Outreach Office Helps Many Residents In Variety Of Ways

Meet Debbie Brown, who is located in the old Seaside City Hall building at 1580 Del Monte, the Outreach Office of the Community Services Department of Monterey County (formerly OEO) which is a real hum of activity.

Debbie Brown will greet you with a smile when you enter. If your problem is help with filling out forms, an appointment with a county agency, advice on where to get help for most anything, she is there to help you. She is responsible for the transportation referrals and gives them to Harold Henry who drives the bright orange minibus.

As receptionist, Debbie refers people to the Welfare Department Office (Room 5), to seniors citizens (Room 1), to Manpower, to SHARE, to foster grandparents, to the Monterey County Task Force, Inc. Food Bank, and to Young Adults For Action who occupy the other half of the building.

This is how the transportation works. Debbie receives calls from all sorts of public and private agencies, all of whom are setting up appointments for their clients. Because there are so many needing rides, the individual may not call in but must be referred by one of those Debbie listed. Calls come from all over the Peninsula and the Marina and go to almost every agency or medical office or hospital.

The senior citizen staff for the Peninsula, headed by Jim Lyle, has office space behind Debbie's desk. In addition to helping locate seniors who need help, working with the local clubs and arranging transportation and craft classes, the seniors are working on a major project to provide a store and saleable products so the program can be self-supporting, the seniors can have independent income, and they can have the entertainment of working together.

Gerry Williams, manpower specialist, can often be found meeting people at the Outreach office. Gerry places the "hard to employ" with sympathetic employers. He is constantly moving around the community looking for, and talking to people, about jobs and training programs.

The Monterey County Welfare Department keeps regular office hours at the Outreach office and is now encouraging all Seaside residents who need welfare help to go there instead of the County Court House on Aguajito Road in Monterey.

SHARE (Seaside Helpers For Alcoholism Recovery And Education) run by Bill Trimiar, occupies office space until they get their own residence facility.

Two people, funded by Operation Mainstream, are working in the office too. Chris Petersen of Foster Grandparents helps the others with his statistical knowledge and Charlotte Berk works directly with Debbie. As Charlotte becomes more familiar with her duties, Debbie will be able to go out into the community and do real outreach - something she says she is really looking forward to doing.

Last but not least, Steve Ross Directs the Food Bank operation of the Monterey County Task Force, Inc. Space is provided by the Community Service Department and the task force provides their own food and funds so they can give emergency food to those in dire need.

Debbie schedules all meetings in what was the Seaside City Council Chambers. There are about 40 meetings per month, mostly at night. They range from a YAFA weight lifting class to a homeowners meeting.

Last month over 450 people passed through the doors of the Outreach office or received transportation through the office. Community services department director Richard Bennet says "Although the figures look good, we are just scratching the surface in providing help to those in need."

Form Health Alliance

A Bay Area Black Student Health Alliance was formed last week when more than 60 students in various fields of health care met in Los - Gatos. The students are representatives from many Bay Area community college, private and state universities. The meeting was sponsored by the Health Services Education Council (Health SEC) in San Jose.

The Black Student Health Alliance will act as a clearinghouse of health manpower education and health care delivery information. The group seeks to strengthen the alliance between black students in health careers and professionals currently involved in health care. It also hopes to be responsive to the needs of health care delivery by developing means of effective and efficient health manpower, especially in the areas with a large Black population.

Elected as members of the group's Central Committee, the administrative body responsible for program development and implementation, are Dhomana, San Jose City College; Paul J. Goedig, San Jose State University; Iantha Hutchinson, College of Alameda; Ramona Lofton, San Francisco City College; and Tyrone Powell, Stanford University. Gary McHenry, a Program Analyst with Health SEC, will serve in an advisory capacity to the committee.

The Health Services Education Council was formed in 1972 "to improve the personal health and health care accessibility" for people in Monterey, San Benito, San Mateo, Santa Clara and Santa Cruz Counties by more effective development and utilization of health manpower.

YWCA Celebrating World Service Week

As part of a worldwide movement, embracing 83 countries, including our own, the YWCA of the Monterey Peninsula will join with others across the nation to celebrate YWCA Week of Prayer and World Fellowship, November 11 to 17. Mrs. James A. Jolly of Monterey, Chairman of the "World Mutual Service Week", as it is now to be known, has scheduled the fourth of the planning meetings for October 30 at 10 a.m., at the Monterey headquarters of YWCA in the USO building.

"This annual observance of World Mutual Service," Mrs. Jolly points out, "demonstrates the collective will of women to advance the cause of peace and justice, freedom and dignity for all people, through YWCA program and services. The YWCA is a local, national and international movement, founded more than 100 years ago, and continues to work for the elimination of institutional racism and all racial discrimination. World Fellowship Week, now World Mutual Service, has in itself been celebrated for 75 years consecutively.

A YWCA Open House for World Mutual Service Observation will take place on Monday, November 12, 2 to 5 p.m., at the USO, Monterey, Webster and El Estero Streets. The committee assisting Mrs. Jolly includes the new Executive Director of the YWCA, Miss Judith Chumlea, formerly at the large Denver branch; Barbara Tappe, Youth Program Director; also Mrs. Charles C. Clauser of Carmel Valley, Mrs. Charles Taylor and Mrs. Gabrielle Lekas of Monterey, and Dr. Iona Logie of Carmel, recently returned from visits to YWCA residence clubs in Great Britain. Mrs. James M. Brittain, YWCA president, will pour tea and receive guests from many nations, resident throughout the Peninsula.

Beware, Says County

The Monterey County Department of Weights, Measures and Consumer Affairs has received complaints from residents who have been approached by vendors selling frozen steaks and other meats.

The vendors have been contacting employees of businesses and private individuals offering meats which are "prepared for restaurants" and are "portion-controlled." Wholesale price savings are implied. The meats are offered at a price per box of so many protions (example: a box of 20 7oz. rib eye steaks for $27.50).

Consumers are advised to exercise good buying practices and demand the same information that is available at local meat markets. To buy wisely, the price per pound and the quality grade of the product is needed information.

In the example above, rib eye steaks of unknown quality sold for over $3.10 per pound.

Faces Around the Bay

NATIVE OF DALLAS, TEXAS, John Perkins, owner of John Perkins Photo Service, 1306 Fremont Blvd., Seaside, came to peninsula while in military. He was assigned to Fort Ord, where he remained until he was discharged in 1956. He made Seaside his home and started in janitorial work. Since he developed interest in photography, he has attended Monterey Peninsula College and New York Institute of Photography. He is married to Sarah, an elementary school teacher and has one child.

The John Perkins Story

by Tom Nash

The John Perkins story is a classic example of what one can do if the desire is great enough.

John was a janitor with abmition. He served his country in the armed forces, and upon his release from active duty in 1956, found that the only job he could obtain was that of a janitor. It was not because of the fact that John was not skilled in other trades, but opportunities for minorities were few and far in between.

The average individual would have accepted his fate, but not John Perkins. He worked diligently as a janitor and performed those duties admirably, but underneath he was completely dissatisfied, and began seeking "another way."

Not one person would have believed that John Perkins could or would have a chance to build the Monterey Peninsula's first commercial color print processing laboratory. But John and Sarah, his wife, had that "bulldog tenacity" and "dynamic stick-tuity". So John enrolled in the Monterey Peninsula College, taking a course in photography. Today he has one of the finest studios on the West Coast, and is working seven days per week.

Perkins gave himself a year to study while still working as a janitor, hurrying through his janitorial duties in order that he could spend some time reading the school's encyclopedias on photography.

Continuously encouraged by his school teacher wife, Sarah, John studies religiously, both in and out of school, and after one year of professional training, John walked out into his front yard and took a picture of his neighbor. Armed with ancient chemicals and paper given him by a friend, John rushed into his converted bathroom dark room, and came out with his first picture. But the print which was supposed to be black and white turned out to be purple. This was due to the old chemicals and paper he had to work with.

John and Sarah Perkins confer in his ultra-modern studio over some recent photos

Not discouraged, but highly encouraged, John persisted.

This time he armed himself with new chemicals and paper and thus he entered into the professional field of photography.

John became the staff photographer for the Seaside POST nad News-Sentinel and the Monterey Herald Newspapers, and became the official photographer for The Classmate.

Here then is another example of a minority that was seeking a chance, not charity. The Seaside POST and News-Sentinel salutes John Perkins.

PROPOSITION 20
TAX EQUALIZATION

The City of Seaside was joined by the majority of other California cities in adopting the following resolution at the Annual League of California Cities meeting:

''WHEREAS, the California Coastal Zone Conservation Act of 1972 has declared the California coastal zone to be a distinct and valuable natural resource belonging to all the people; and

WHEREAS, the California Coastal zone is defined to include all lands extending seaward to the outer-limits of the state jurisdiction, and extending inland to the highest elevation of the nearest coastal mountain range, or in certain areas five miles from the mean high tide line; and

WHEREAS, the coastal cities are contained within the confines of the California Coastal Zone Conservation Act of 1972 specifically described within the Public Resources Code, Section 27100; and

WHEREAS, the properties contained within the coastal zone have traditionally served as one of the main tax base to support the services provided by the numerous local governmental entities having jurisdiction within this zone; and

WHEREAS, there are presently strong pressures by the people of the state to use public tax monies and state surpluses to purchase large tracts of park and open space lands within the coastal zone, thus totally removing them from the local tax rolls; and

WHEREAS, the recent passage of the Property Tax Relief Act of 1972 restricts local jurisdictions from increasing their property tax levels on the property remaining on the tax rolls, which must continue to support the required level of services; and

WHEREAS, the extent and nature of many of the local public services provided within the coastal zone are required to accommodate the influx of the state's people who visit the coast, but who are not presently required to pay taxes to support these services, such as road maintenance, police protection, traffic control, fire protection, rescue operations, ambulance services, litter control, sanitary facilities, etc.; and

WHEREAS, the operation, improvement and maintenance of public recreational beaches and the expenditure of funds for such purposes by cities in the coastal zone is in the interest and for the benefit of all the people of the state; and

WHEREAS, it appears that there is a need and ample justification for the state to assist local communities charged with the responsibility of operating and maintaining public beaches and other regional recreational areas; now, therefore, be it.

RESOLVED, by the General Assembly of the League of California Cities, assembled in Annual Conference in San Francisco, October 24, 1973, that the League support the concept of an equalization of the tax burden placed on coastal cities and their tax burden placed on coastal cities and their taxpayers, both because of the enactment of Proposition 20 and because of their location in proximity to areas of statewide interest and benefit, so that, to a fair and reasonable degree, all California taxpayers share in the cost of preserving and maintaining the state's coastal areas as a statewide environmental and recreational resource.''

Bob Wood Reports

The Governor's recent tough "law and order" report calling for a wide-range overhaul of California law enforcement including, among other proposals, mandatory prison terms for criminals carrying guns or selling heroin is something worth considering.

The 164-page report was submitted for consideration to the Democratic-controlled Legislature with the statement that a massive increase in crime has come about during "a golden age of permissiveness" in society. What the Democrats will do to supplement the report with legislation is something we will just have to wait and see. Among the principal recommendations were:

*Criminals using guns would go to prison.

*Mandatory prison sentences for those convicted for possession of heroin for sale.

*Pass a law making it a misdemeanor to drive a car when a person has 0.10 alcohol content in his blood regardless of the individual's ability to perform brief balance and coordination tests.

HOW TO HELP CONSERVE ENERGY:
FREE PG&E BOOKLET OFFERS 61 MONEY-SAVING TIPS.

The energy pinch is on. So we are urgently requesting that our customers make a concentrated effort to conserve all the electricity they can. Although our power plants currently have the capacity to meet demands, we are facing a critical fuel supply problem. If we can't get enough fuel to operate our power plants at the necessary capacity, there won't be enough electricity to go around. Brownouts and blackouts could occur as early as next year.

This could mean not only inconvenience in the home but also industrial curtailments affecting jobs. We are working with business and industry to help them cut their energy use without interfering with their operations. But there are also ways you can help reduce energy use in the home:

By following the suggestions offered in our free "Meter Minders' Guidebook" you can help in the conservation effort and also save money on your household PG&E bill. And many of the tips suggested in the booklet require very little effort. Here are just a few of the 61 tips:

Use only full loads in your washing machine and clothes dryer.
Fill your dishwasher completely and operate it only once a day (instead of twice). You'll save energy and nearly a dollar a month on your utility bill.
Iron large batches of clothing at one time. That way you won't waste electricity re-heating your iron.
Turn off your lights, electric appliances, TV and stereo, when you're not using them.

How to conserve gas and electricity and get the most for your energy dollar.

Businesses Increase In State

New businesses appear to be doing their share of providing the more than 200,000 new jobs needed annually in California, the state Department of Commerce announced recently.

According to figures collated by the Department's Division of Business and Industry Development from records of the state Department of Human Resources Development, nearly 15,500 new businesses were registered with the state during the second half of 1972.

They accounted for the creation of more than 48,000 new jobs. Commerce officials believe that the recorded figures may understate the actual impact on the job market, if a significant percentage of the new companies were successful and grew to employ more people.

"Forms filed with the Department of Human Resources Development by new companies and out-of-state companies establishing facilities in California started up," John K. Geoghegan, director of the Department of Commerce explained.

Retail trade and service businesses accounted for 29 percent and 28 percent of the total number of new businesses. Nine percent of the new businesses were in the manufacturing sector. Retail trade and service businesses each provided 29 percent of the new jobs, while manufacturing provided 13 percent.

Geoghegan, while noting that the figures are encouraging, pointed out that reliable estimates on the number of businesses relocating out of state or going out of business are not yet available.

Geoghegan added that the Division plans to continue to gather and analyze such employment data -- including the impact of firms going out of business -- to help determine the net effect of business and industry development on employment.

A principal objective of the Department of Commerce, Geoghegan said, is to help create job opportunities for Californians.

Fort Ord Rehab Center Helps Many

The rehabilitation centers of Fort Ord's Alcohol and Drug Abuse Division provide supportive counseling on a resident and non-resident basis for anyone needing help.

The Halfway House serves men as the focal point for intensive counseling, and has billeting for live-in clients. A similar facility for women -- called the House of Hope -- is scheduled to open within a matter of weeks.

Halfway House and the House of Hope are centers for those people who need intensive individual attention. The centers provide individual and group counseling, recreation therapy, and work therapy.

In addition to the services provided to the alcohol and drug-dependent individual, the rehabilitation center has a telephone "crisis intervention" service on a 24-hour basis. A person who needs "Help" can talk to someone about his or her problem by simply dialing "D-R-U-G-." And when it opens, the House of Hope will have a 24-hour telephone service for women who need help and feel more confortable talking to another woman.
